E. N. CARTER HEADS TEACHERS ASS'N.

COUNTY SUPERINTENDENT OF HARRISON CO., CHOSEN

HAWKINS IS SECRETARY

Resolutions Adopted Expressed Approval of County Unit Bill—Meeting Closed Today

E. N. Carter, who for the past four years has been county superintendent of Harrison County, was this morning elected as president of the Northwest Missouri Teachers' Association for the coming year. The other officers elected at the business meeting were: first vice-president, E. P. Adams, superintendent, New Hampton; second vice-president, Miss Gertrude Fulcher, county superintendent of Platte County; third vice-president, E. O. Harvey, superintendent, Tina; secretary, C. A. Hawkins, Maryville; treasurer, L. A. Zeliff, superintendent, Stanberry.

The new member of the executive committee elected was, Charles H. Bryant, Winston, Mr. Carter had been nominated as the second member of the executive committee before his nomination for the presidency and with his election to this office it will be necessary to fill the other vacancy at the next meeting of the executive committee.

The retiring officers are: presiednt, S. C. Richeson, Hopkins; first vice-president, Fred Keller, Chula; second vice-president, Mrs. Allie Wilson, Princeton; third vice-president, Ed Adams, Barnard, treasurer, E. C. Harvey, and C. A. Hawkins as secretary, who was re-elected. This makes the sixth year for Mr. Hawkins as secretary as he has served in that capacity since the organization of the association. The retiring members of the executive committee are: Mrs. Anna Sims, Plattsburg and W. A. Power, Quitman.

A small number of teachers were present at the meeting this morning which made it hard to transact business, particularly the amendments to the constitution, for two-thirds of the enrollment are necessary at the annual meeting to alter the constitution. This was overcome by a technicality, whereby it was voted that this meeting be interpreted as a business meeting and the following amendments to the constitution voted upon:

The amendment to create a Department of Fine Arts with a program to be prepared for next years meeting was passed.

An amendment to combine the offices of secretary and treasurer was rejected.

A motion was carried to submit next year an amendment to change the time of annual business meeting from Saturday morning, the last day of the convention to Friday morning. The purpose of this is to insure a bigger attendance to the business meeting.

A similar motion was carried to vote next year to amend the constitution so that two-thirds of the members present would have power to amend the constitution instead of two-thirds of the enrollment.

The adjournment of the session this morning brought a close to the fifth annual meeting of the association. Although the attendance was not as large as last year, from the standpoint of interesting speakers and beneficial speakers the convention has been most successful.

The resolutions of the Northwest Missouri Teachers' Association adopted in a business session are:

Resolved, That we express our thanks to the citizens of Maryville for their interest and hospitality shown to the visiting teachers.

Resolved, That we express our thanks to the officials of our organization for efforts in our behalf throughout the past year; especially do we thank Mr. C. A. Hawkins on whom the greater part of the work has fallen.

POINTS MADE IN LAST SIX MINUTES OF GAME

DROP KICK-TOUCHDOWN

Was Anybody's Game Until Near the Last—Finished With Ball in Maryville's Territory

By a drop kick and an intercepted pass made in the last six minutes of play the Peru State Teachers College of Nebraska emerged victorious over the Bearcats yesterday by a score of 10 to 0. The two teams seemed evenly matched and the game was a hard battle throughout. Until the last part of the fourth quarter it looked as if there would not be any score made by either of the teams. In the last quarter the Peru College opened up and by forward passes and fake plays carried the ball to within four yards of the goal but was penalized for offside five yards. Buttzengaugh the heavy fullback of the Peru aggregation made a perfect drop kick, scoring three points for the Peru squad.

The Maryville Bearcats discouraged by the score of Peru and with only five minutes of time left opened up with forward passes while in the enemies territory. One of the passes of Maryville was intercepted by Buttzergaugh and carried over Maryville line for a touchdown. Buttzengaugh made a drop kick making the score 10 to 0 in favor of Peru.

After the game Eugene A. Maynor, coach of the Bearcats, presented Peru with the football used during the game. On the ball was painted the data concerning the game.

Willy, the captain of the Peru squad and right halfback, suffered an injured neck. It was a severe injury.

Between halves a snake dance was put on by the College students, who surrounded the two teams and gave several yells.

The game by quarters was: Peru won the toss and elected to defend the east goal. Peru kicked off to Maryville who made a small gain on receiving the kick. After loosing a yard on a long end play Maryville punted. Peru made a five yard gain in receiving the punt and 5 yards on an off tackle play but fumbled the ball to Maryville. Maryville made a 2-yard gain over tackle and then tried a forward pass which was incompleted. Maryville punted the ball to Peru who, after being stopped behind the line of scrimmage punted to Maryville. Maryville gained four yards on a shift play and again made 5 yards on an over center play. On the next play Maryville made her downs with an additional - yard gain. Maryville then tried three over tackle plays, failed to make downs and punted. Peru for three downs was stopped on the line of scrimmage and forced to punt. Maryville then made a forward pass to Webb who after passing all of Peru's defense stumbled and prevented Maryville from scoring. He made a gain of twenty-five yards. Maryville made a gain of three yards over tackle and another of two yards off guard but fumbled the ball on a fake shift play. The quarter ended with the ball in Peru's possession. Maryville was being out punted and so gradually pushed back. Score 0 to 0.

DRESS REHEARSAL TO BE TOMORROW

DE MOLAY PLAY TO BE MONDAY AND TUESDAY

A PLUNGE IN SOCIETY

Director Predicts That It Will Be Better Than "Believe Me Xantippe"

Dress rehearsal for the De Molay play, "A Tailor-Made Man," will be held tomorrow afternoon at the Empire Theater. The final rehearsal at the armory will be held tonight when the whole play will be gone over. This rehearsal will close a two-weeks grind for both the director, Miss Blanche Dow and the cast of twenty-eight characters.

The play will be presented Monday and Tuesday nights at the Empire Theater. A Tailor-Made Man is a four-act comedy drama with many bits of fun and wit and some tense drama. it is a play on an entirely different order than ever before presented in Maryville. It is a more difficult play to present and it requires real acting on the part of the members of the cast.

The story hinges around John Paul Bart, a presser in the tailoring establishment of Mr. Anton Huber. Bart, who is dissatisfied in his capacity as a tailors assistant, in a unique manner take a plunge into the depths of society. How he fares there and how he succeeds, or does not succeed, has been woven into an interesting comedy by the author. It is a Samuel French play and is this fall for the first time, open for amateur production. It is a royalty play.

Reserved seats are now on sale at the Kuchs Brothers Jewelry Store. The reserved seats for Tuesdays performance will not go on sale until Tuesday morning.

This is the second play which the De Molays have presented in Maryville. The first, a comedy entitled Believe Me Xantippe, was a success and Miss Dow, who also directed this play, predicts that "A Tailor-Made Man" will be better.

The cast for "A Tailor-Made Man" includes all of the leading characters of Believe Me Xantippe and in addition Miss Dow has "found" several local talent actors and actresses with ability.

The play is being staged by J. Louis Kraft. All the settings and electric effects will be handled by him.

TO CAMPAIGN FOR MORE HOT LUNCHES

MISS ESSIE M. HEYLE TO BE HERE NEXT WEEK

MAKES HEALTH BETTER

Dr. Claude P. Fryer Says That 20 Per Cent of Rural Children Are Under Weight

An intensive educational campaign is to be put on in Nodaway County next week for the purpose of securing more hot lunches in the rural schools for the children. Miss Essie M. Heyle, head of the extension service of the home economics department of the University of Missouri college of agriculture will be in the county and hold meetings at a number of the schools. She is brought here by the farm bureau in co-operation with the Nodaway County Health Department.

The health department since its organization has been active along the line of education for hot lunches and has accomplished considerable. Besides this a number of the teachers in the county had their little hot lunches arranged for the children before the health department took up its work. But that there are not enough hot lunches, is the opinion of Dr. Claude P. Fryer, county health officer.

"Twenty per cent of the children in the rural schools are under weight," said Dr. Fryer this morning. "We hope that with the establishment of hot lunches in the rural schools this condition would be overcome in a good many cases. In urging that hot lunches be provided for the children we are not desiring to create more work for the teachers. It is our desire only to get the best conditions possible for the children as they pursue their school duties.

Following is Miss Heyle's program for the week:

Monday afternoon—Graham school.

Tuesday morning—Quitman school.

Wednesday morning—Parnell school.

Wednesday afternoon — Harmony school.

Thursday morning—Lafayette school.

Thursday afternoon—Martha Washington school.

Friday and Saturday — Ravenwood school.

Miss Heyle will invite the patrons to the school meetings and take up the hot lunch question with them and the teachers.

BRITISH POLICY PREVENTED WAR

LLOYD GEORGE MADE A POLITICAL SPEECH AT MANCHESTER.

INDICATES RETIREMENT

Said He Would Watch With Interest the Work of Others on Various Problems.

Manchester, Eng., Oct. 14.—Premier Lloyd George in a political speech in which he claimed the British policy in the Near East prevented another world war strongly indicated today he is prepared to reign immediately from the premiership. The premier's statement of retirement was made indirectly when he said he would watch with interest the work of others on German reparations, gaining the friendship of French and payment of debt to the United States.

He made the startling revelation that two million Greek Armenian Christians were slaughtered by the Turks since 1914. He scored the old diplomacy when he charged it was responsible for the disastrous world war.

London, Oct. 14—Premier Lloyd George's speech at Manchester, indicating his retirement, is the chief topic of conversation in political circles this afternoon. Some interpret the speech as meaning that the premier will call a general election immediately upon retiring, unless his party achieves a sweeping victory at the polls.

MODERN BANKING.

It used to be the business of the banker to sit behind his money bags, receive the deposits that came in without effort, and loan them out to applicants for funds. It was a passive conception of the function of this business and modern banking does much more than that. It plans thrift campaigns, and promotes various projects to induce people to save money regularly, and aids customers in the successful conduct of their business affairs. Plans of that kind were discussed at the recent convention of the American Bankers Association at New York, and many of the bank men will go home with new ideas of how to promote the thrift habit.

A vast amount of money goes to waste for trifles that ought to be deposited in banks where it will help build up the country and build up a surplus for the depositor. By active campaigns of advertising and solicitation the banks are getting a good deal of this unutilized capital, the saving of which goes far to promote prosperity.

The sows and gilts averaged $33.60. There were 42 head in the sale. The bidding was spirited, and the sale went off rapidly.

New Gridiron Rule Will Make Kicking a Feature

By Billy Evans

New York, Oct. 14.—Baseball numbers among its enthusiasts many football stars of other days.

Even though football is crowding baseball slowly but surely from the sport map the world series proved a magnet that overcame the lure of the gridiron.

At the opening game of the series I saw a score of famous former football stars. Some were players who have been out of the game only a few years. All of them seemed perfectly willing to put aside their fondness for the gridiron game until after the world series.

Stars Not Enthusiastic

Several of these old stars saw the first grid games of the year, in which the big teams of the east took part. None of them seemed to enthuse over the new rule which gives the team making a touchdown the right to make one play from scrimmage.

Most of the old stars feel that the new play will not produce the thrills that were expected of it.

In the opening games practically every eleven elected to try for goals from the field after scoring a touchdown. That is, on all scrimmage plays after touchdown the team having the ball tried to score the extra point either by a drop kick or goal from placement.

Studying Drop Kick

I dropped over to the Harvard stadium while in Boston to look over the Crimson squad.

The one thing that interested me most was the numbers of players practicing drop kicking. At least 20 were taking instruction in the art of kicking goals from the field.

Coach Bill Roper at Princeton has a dozen kickers out every day an hour before regular practice. These players do nothing but drop kick or attempt goals from placement.

Evidently Roper and Fisher feel that the best way to try to score after making a touchdown is to attempt field goals.

When the new rule was made it was hoped it would bring about much new strategy in football. It seems that it will merely narrow down to a kicking feature.

May Wholly Fail

It wouldn't be surprising if the ruled failed of its purpose.

Many of the football men I talked with seemed to think it as much of a joke as the goal after touchdown.

The impression that prevailed was that next year a touchdown would count seven points, and there would be no try for a point after the making of a touchdown.

Football experts feel that a touchdown as a rule, is far more difficult to negotiate than two field goals. That is why they insist a touchdown should count seven points.

With field goals counting three points it would take three such kicks to overcome a touchdown.—St. Joseph Gazette.

And not the least important phase of modern history lies in the realm of industrial progress. You find this chronicled in the advertisements.

ALLISON SEES GOVERNOR HYDE GET DOCTOR'S DEGREE

Was Given at Marshall, Where Pastor Was Attending Presbyterian Synod

The Rev. S. P. Allison, who returned last night from Marshall, where he had been all week attending the meeting of the Synod of Missouri of the Presbyterian Church, saw the degree of Doctor of Laws conferred upon Governor Arthur M. Hyde by the the Missouri Valley College. Governor Hyde was at Marshall to give the principal adress at the dedication of the Robert T. Morrison Gymnasium of the College. Mr. Allison says that the governor complimented highly the work of the christian colleges in the state. Other degrees were conferred Dr. E. E. Stringfield, pastor of the Presbyterian Church at King City, was given the degree of Doctor of Divinity.

The new gymnasium is a very fine one. The main floor is large, with complete showerbath and dressing room equipment in the basement. More than five hundred alumni students and guests were served at the banquet held in the gymnasium at the dedication.

R. A. Guthrie, was elected moderator of Synod. Mr. Guthrie is an elder of the Presbyterian Church at Macon, Mo. It is not often that a layman is so elected. The election was a recognition of fine service rendered in the work of the church.

Many notable men addressed Synod. The Moderator of the General Assembly, Dr. Calvin C. Hays, preached the opening sermon.

The Bible Hour every morning was conducted by Dr. James H. Snowden, professor at Western Theological Seminary of Pittsburg and editor of "The Presbyterian Magazine" the official publication of the Presbyterian church.

Dr. S. Willis McKelvey, of New York spoke each day on the general theme "The Spirit of Jesus and Stewardship" "Men must definitely face the Lordship of Jesus and adjust their lives with what He has the right to require from them," was one of the main truths Dr. McKelvey stressed.

Foreign missions was represented by Dr. Wm. P. Schell, of New York, one of the secretaries of the Board of Foreign Missions. "You do not give money to the Board of Foreign Missions," he said. "We do not ask you for money. You give to the need of the world. Our budget presented to the churches simply represents this need of the world. it will be expended to make the world Christian."

"The old frontier of Home Missions was in the West, in new communities where help was needed to maintain a church. The new frontier is in the cities, especially in the East of the United States north of the Ohio river, where the foreign population of the nation is concentrated. Fifty-one per cent of our population now lives in the cities. In New York ,only a small portion of the churches are supported by living givers. Some others are maintained by endowments. Most, however, are helped by home mission funds. The change of population to foreign born and immigrants has changed the character of the work needing to be done, and requires the help of the whole church to Christianize and Americanize these foreign centers."

Religious education and Young Peoples Work was discussed under the leadership of W. D. Howell, general field representative of the board of Sunday school work. Dr. Merle Anderson, of the New Era Movement, had for his general subject, "Administration Problems."

In addition to these men, the moderator of the general assembly of the Presbyterian church preached the opening sermon of synod.

Honorable Wayne B. Wheeler, general counsel of the Anti-Saloon League, spoke on Wednesday evening. He paid his compliments to Senator Reed, reciting Reed's records as a friend of the wet interests. "Beer and light wines cannot be allowed and prohibition be effective," he said. On this point he spoke of North Carolina which allowed for a time 2 per cent beer, only to find that intoxication was not decreased. Normal beer contained 3½ per cent alcohol. A larger quantity of beer was all that was necessary to get the same amount of alcohol."

HOLDS HIGHLY PRIZED RELIC

Famous Crucifix Presented to St. Francis Xavier Has Been Long Preserved in Dublin Convent.

The valuable crucifix of St. Francis Xavier which is preserved in the Presentation convent, George's hill, Dublin, was presented as a token of gratitude to St. Francis Xavier by an Indian of importance whom he had converted to the faith. It remained for 200 years at the College of Goa, which the saint had founded. When the Portuguese Jesuits were expelled from India some French or Belgian missionaries who were returning to Europe happened to pass through Goa and succeeded in obtaining possession of the relic. It was brought by them to Paris, where it remained until 1763, when the Jesuits were expelled from France.

Among the Jesuits working in Paris at the time was Father James Philip Mulcaille. In the disturbances and confiscation of property Father Mulcaille was successful in preserving the crucifix, which he brought to Dublin. In Dublin he worked as a secular priest and was instrumental in introducing a community of the Presentation order to the city. He died in 1907, leaving all he possessed, including the precious crucifix, to the nuns. From that day to this it has remained in their possession.—Detroit News.

SEEMINGLY HOME OF SPIDERS

In South America One Builds Trolley Line and Another Appears Like an Electric Fan.

In South America and many other tropical countries, the very earth teems with spiders; they live in and on the water; they swarm in the grass; they live in the bushes and on the trees.

The "fairy gossamer," in iridescent infinitesimal species, carries a tiny thread mill in its body, and by some mechanical force, yet unknown to science, can instantaneously shoot out filaments twenty or thirty inches long, by means of which aerial trolley these creatures are always floating about in the atmosphere.

A member of the South African spider family named Proleus is a dusty, domestic, home-loving creature, a poor sort, which inhabits undusted corners and ceilings, in vast numbers. It has a curious method of protecting itself from attack, observes the Detroit News. On too familiar approach its long legs fly together in the center of its web, when it whirls itself around with the velocity of an electric fan, appearing like mere mist on the web, leaving no visible point of attack.

Fish Far From Home.

Indians at Glacier Park, Mont., caught in Iceberg lake a species of trout identified as the Salvelinum Rossi, which hitherto has been known to exist only in the Arctic ocean, and geologists in this territory are convinced this strange body of water in Glacier National park is connected subterraneously with the icy waters of the Far North. This is the second species of this trout taken from Iceberg lake, the other "furlike clad" member of the finny tribe having been hooked by a fly fisherman about ten years ago. The specimen caught measures slightly over two feet from nose to the fork in its tail.

An Elastic Budget.

The Good Ship Mabel

By MARTHA M. WILLIAMS

(©, 1922, by McClure Newspaper Syndicate.)

"Come, Tommy Tucker, sing for your supper—brenkfast, rather," Mabel said, leaning from her open window to throw a handful of flies, freshly swatted, upon the window ledge lower down. Tommy Tucker, being a mocker, in full flood of May morning song, yet heeded a fly or so, then filled his beak and flew away to his mate brooding precious eggs in the honeysuckle arbor beyond the garden gate.

He knew Mabel for a friend. Now for three years he had had the freedom of the Weir place, and the protection of its human occupants. Cats were taboo there—Snip, the alert black and tan terrier, accounted for any rat bold enough to intrude. Snip was as friendly as his owners—even if a nestling fluttered prematurely from the nest, he merely watched them gravely, never offering them harm. Mabel humored the birds shamefully, not grudging them the first and best strawberries, nor forgetting treats of hard-boiled eggyolk when the babies were very new. Liberal, too, in the matter of crumbs and snippets of fat. Indeed, it is rather a wonder that the mockers did not come to depend wholly upon her largesse.

In return for it she had floods of silver melody throughout the day. Aunt Persis grumbled sourly—the bird she was sure gave her bad dreams—she never had them except when he was so loud. But Mable only laughed at her—as she laughed at everything now that she was so happy. Joy had come with spring mornings after a dreary winter of waiting, of agonized suspense.

Existence had been reasonably sunshiny—indeed she had called herself fortunate and happy before she knew. Now all the years behind seemed but agreeably drab, beside the glorious rainbow-shining of the new present. Love had come—and gone, like a sun gleam betwixt storm clouds—there had been no word, no sign, only those things eyes may speak to eyes, to feed her hungry heart through the years of Peyton's absence. Two interminable years of unbroken silence—then the letter, all too brief, saying, "I have slain the lions in my path, and am coming to claim my own."

Three days more of waiting? She was not impatient—they would run on racing feet. And they would be so full—all the place must be in festival array. The happiness of making it so almost frightened her. If anything should happen—bravely she refused to think anything could. Looking after her winged pensioner, she gave thanks—he had helped her to wake through the brief night, filled every second with thrilling joy. She had put by all thought of the lions, knowing well they must have been savage and fearful to make Peyton hesitate in claiming her. Enough that he loved her, was coming to her—whether for an hour or forever did not greatly matter. He had but to say "Follow me," and she would go with him to the world's end, forsaking all things else in cleaving only to him.

The wide house stood open to sweet morning airs as she ran down the great stairway. Aunt Persis was coming up the gray stone steps her flat basket heaped with royal red roses gemmed with dew. Her mood was not however rosy. She dropped her basket saying fretfully: "I do wish there were no telephones—then we needn't know of troubles until they came."

"Who's troubling who this heavenly morning?" Mabel asked gayly. Her aunt looked down, answering in a hard voice: "Long distance has just told me John Bassett is coming, the same day, likely on the same train, as Royal Peyton."

"I can't be glad to see him," Mabel shot back truthfully: "Any outsider must be unwelcome just then. Did you tell John why he had better stay away—at least until after—"

"No need—when I said Roy was coming he growled: 'I know it—that is what's bringing me.' And rung off right there—not telling me where I could reach him—you know he is most always some place he ought not to be," Aunt Persis interrupted. Mabel turned away, with a faint shudder—John Bassett was, she knew, another name for trouble. Nephew and heir to Gardner, who had been Aunt Persis' husband, that lady's plan and hope had been to see him Mabel's husband. He was college-bred, rich, fair-looking and dominant. "You are the only thing I want and have not been able to get," he had said to Mabel after a third refusal, six months back. "But don't think I'm giving you up—you'll wake up in your right senses by and by."

Recalling his set mouth, his burning eyes, Mabel's heart sank—almost instantly it rebounded, singing for joy. She was alone, her own mistress, free of everything but the love bond, a chain that not even the hottest fires could melt. With a soft smile she led her aunt into breakfast, saying clearly: "I don't hate the phone—but for it how should I ever manage to have enough for two hungry men rather than one?"

Royal Peyton did not come by train, instead in a swift motor, with a racing driver at the wheel, a minister snug inside, and for luggage only a brief case and box after box of the costliest flowers. He began at once, setting them here, there, everywhere.

"We must be married in two hours," he said, smiling down at Mabel, whom he had taken openly in his arms upon the steps. "You will not ask explanations—I read that in your eyes. We want no crowd—only witnesses and two or three guests. Send for them—wherever you choose. My chauffeur is a wizard at finding places and people. They must make haste; we shall go straight back to the port. A yacht waits there for us—the good ship Mabel, soon to be doubly mine."

As in a dream Mabel obeyed him. She had never any clear memory of what came to pass before she stood beside Peyton with the minister fronting them, book in hand. Aunt Persis, sniffing audibly under the family portraits, and good Judge Hardin, her sometime guardian, ready to place her hand in that of her chosen mate. Through the hushed room Tommy Tucker's morning carol came like a benediction. It roused Mabel as no clarion could. She was suddenly vividly awake to everything. Every word of the opening service sank like molten metal into her consciousness. At the question of any "lawful impediment" she felt her heart swell suffocatingly. Impediment was unthinkable; yet sharp from the hall came John Bassett's cry: "Ask Convict 7,099 why he is here trying to marry a gentlewoman instead of in his cell?"

"So as to leave room in the penitentiary for you, Mr. Bassett," Royal Peyton said evenly, turning to Mabel questioning eyes.

She put her hand in his, and said clearly, "Judge Hardin, please ask the minister to go on with the ceremony."

John Bassett made a tiger leap forward. The chauffeur, lurking in the door, tripped him and held him down. Aunt Persis promptly fainted, but had to come to unaided; all were too intent on the drama before them to think of her.

Briefly but efficiently the minister did his office—his only prayer "God bless and protect you both."

Peyton wrung his hand. Mabel gave him a melting glance. Then, in a voice of steel, Peyton explained:

He had been falsely accused of murder—all but convicted—on perjured testimony by way of getting him silenced concerning a crook deal involving high financiers. John Bassett had been their secret agent. At the last minute his scheme had gone wrong. But he had hoped to brazen it through, delay the wedding and possibly marry Mabel in her horror and revulsion after the scandal.

Which shows how little he knew a woman's heart. As to a man's mind, he was better acquainted, seeing his own led him to vanish utterly, leaving the Peytons to their happiness.

SECRET ORDERS OF ANCIENTS

Practically From the Beginning of History, Men Have Banded Together, for Good or Evil.

"Do you notice what an increase there has been in the wearing of emblem and fraternity pins, these days?" asked Jones.

"I suppose you think that is just an up-to-date fad, don't you?' returned his friend of antiquarian bent. "Well, let me tell you, it is not. Watch charms were invented at least five thousand years before watches, and fraternity badges equally long ago.

"The very same symbols which the 'joiners' are wearing in their lapels and on their fobs today are survivals of forms which were in popular use for the same purpose when Nebuchadnezzar was a kid in school. You see, it was like this: In the days when kings could seldom write their own names and their subjects attributed every natural phenomenon to one of their multifarious gods or devils, there were always a few at least who knew some of the truth.

"Glimmerings of a true science were beginning to dawn on mankind, but humanity was too close to barbarism for such a thing as a law of nature to be understood. When it was perceived that certain laws did exist they were set down to the will and desire of one or another divinity, and when taught to a selected few were hedged about with secrets of the gods to the 'profane'—a word which originally meant 'Outside the Temple.' Architecture, geometry, arithmetic, music, astronomy, the alphabet and the decimal system were once called 'mysteries,' and the process of solemnly scaring the prospective student nearly if not quite to death as a warning to silence before letting him in on the secrets was the preliminary to all education. And each order has its symbol, or pin."

Costly Easter Eggs.

A London jeweler once made an Easter egg, a foot high, of the choicest ivory. Before the contents were added, the egg was sent to Calcutta, where native carvers engraved on it a series of pictures representing the various scenes of the crucifixion and resurrection. This work alone occupied four months. The egg was then filled with jewelry, diamond bracelets, necklaces, and so on. The present was intended for a lucky Easter bride and represented an outlay of about $100,000.

Money Worries.

Mrs. Smith and Mrs. Jones were discussing the affairs of a neighboring household and Mrs. Smith said:

"Mr. Robinson is greatly worried about the money market."

"And," added Mrs. Jones, "Mrs. Robinson is great worried about the market money."—Everybody's Magazine.

To the Rural School Children, Teachers, Patrons and High Schools of Nodaway County

To pass by such an event as "Nodaway County School Day" which will go down in history as the most worth while day ever experienced in the county, if not in the whole state, without a public acknowledgement of our appreciation of the most wonderful example of that CO-OPERATION can do, would be unjust to the children of the rural schools, their teachers and patrons, who made it possible to put on a parade of floats so far beyond the expectation of any one, that all marveled at the beauty and originality and resourcefulness shown in their construction.

And such an event could not have been so successfully carried out except for the team-work of the students, teachers and patrons of the districts participating in the building of these seventy-eight floats which were in the parade Wednesday, October 11th.

While the High Schools of the county were not permitted to compete with floats, since this was purely a rural school day, still the Superintendents and some of their students were willing to co-operate in helping make SCHOOL DAY a huge success by putting on some "Stunt" that night, helping all they were asked to in making a pleasant ending to a PERFECT DAY. And it certainly was that.

Roy Godsey, a former Nodaway County boy representative of the St. Louis Star, will have a full page next Sunday telling about NODAWAY COUNTY SCHOOL DAY and we have ordered 500 copies that will be distributed free to all who would like to keep such as a souvenir of this most wonderful clean, uplifting educational day.

And we shall never forget that the day passed without a single accident, or an unpleasant happening of any sort, and we most sincerely hope that in reality this wonderful demonstration of what a little team-work can do will cause every citizen to have a greater pride in Nodaway County and inspire us to a closer relationship and understanding of the importance of true co-operation in our homes, our schools, our local communities, our towns and our county, which will filter out into adjoining counties, our state and even into our nation.

We are justly proud of the fact that Nodaway County is a leader in what ever she undertakes, and that she never undertakes any big project unless it is a worthwhile one. May we all remember what Solomon said "Where there is no vision, the people perish" and may we keep our vision clear and our purpose RIGHT, keeping in mind that what is good for Nodaway County is good for all of us.

Herbert Spencer said, "The man who, expending his energies wholly in private affairs, refuses to take part in public affairs, pluming himself on his wisdom in minding his own business, is blind to the fact that his own business is made possible only by the prosperity of all."

We thank everyone who contributed in the least to the success of the Nodaway County School Day and we hope the fine spirit of county-wide co-operation that made this day so wonderfully successful may be extended for the upbuilding of Nodaway County and the uplifting of Nodaway County people during every day of the coming years. With such a spirit abroad nothing can prevent the development of an ideal community here that shall lead to better things throughout this entire country.

Most sincerely, yours to serve,

MARYVILLE CHAMBER OF COMMERCE

A vocal solo was sung by Mrs. L. L. St. Clair. A round table discussion was held on the responsibility of the Auxiliary in the coming revival services. At the close of the program a social hour was enjoyed and refreshments were served.

ROCK PORT WANTS DEGREES GIVEN

PROMISE LOCAL DE MOLAYS BANQUET AND DANCE

TO ALBANY NOVEMBER 1

Will Likely Make Trips to Bedford, Stanberry and Oregon to Do Installation Work

A committee of four Master Masons from Rock Port waited on M. A. Peery, chairman of the advisory council of the Maryville Chapter, Order of De Molay, and also district Governor for De Molay, last night for the purpose of obtaining the first papers for starting a chapter of De Molay in Rock Port.

Mr. Peery made out the application for a temporary charter for these men and it has been sent to Frank S. Land, the grand scribe of De Molay, in Kansas City.

The Rock Port chapter will likely be installed within the next month by the local chapter. The Rock Port men have promised the local boys a banquet and a dance after the degree work and in addition have requested that the De Molay drill patrol come and give an exhibition drill.

The De Molays will go to Albany, November 1, to institute a new chapter of De Molay at that town. The entire degree team of some thirty members and the drill patrol will make the trip. The boys will leave Maryville at 3 o'clock in the afternoon and will go direct to Albany, where the drill patrol will give an exhibition drill at 6:30 o'clock.

Both degrees of De Molay will be conferred on that night and after the degree work there will be an installation of officers and a banquet and dance.

Later in the fall the degree teams will likely go to Bedford, Stanberry and Oregon to install chapters.

Mr. Peery is proud of his degree teams and says that he is willing to pit them against any in the state. All of the members of these teams saw the work exemplified at St. Louis this summer when the Mother Chapter at Kansas City gave it at the Annual Missouri State Conclave.

The local chapter is well equipped for the installation of chapters. All of the equipment and costumes necessary are in the possession of the degree teams.

WOMEN INTERESTED IN RENOVATIONS

MISS CLARK HAS GOOD ATTENDANCE AT MEETINGS.

FORM CLUB AT BURR OAK

Forty Attend Meeting Held at Parnell —To Return to Hold School Later in Season.

The work in renovation and household decoration, which has been carried on at four meetings in Nodaway County this week by Miss Fra Clark, specialists from the home economics department of the extension service of the college of agriculture of the University of Missouri, has been received with a marked interest, Miss Clark said this morning. There had been a large attendance at each of the meetings that had been held up to this afternoon, with the exception of the first one, held Tuesday at the home of Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Chesnut. The attendance at this meeting was cut down on account of some of the women who would otherwise have attended being busy in preparations for the Nodaway County School Day that took place on Wednesday.

Forty attended the meeting held Thursday at the hall in Parnell, in which Mrs. E. J. Klaas and Miss Getha Conrad helped in the plans for the meeting.

Twenty-five women of the Burr Oak neighborhood near Skidmore met with Miss Clark yesterday at the home of Mrs. Robert Barrett. While they were assembled they formed a club to be known as the Burr Oak Homemakers Club.

Miss Clark is at the home of Mrs. Miles Nicholas on North Mulberry street in Maryville this afternoon where the Herron Homemaking Circle is holding a meeting.

Miss Clark said this morning that she would return to Maryville later in the season and that she would hold at the office of the farm bureau in Maryville a two-days' meeting to which each of the four communities in which she has held meetings this week will send two representatives. These representatives will be given instructions in renovation. Miss Clark says that it will be possible to take care of twelve women in the class work and that it is probable that other clubs will be allowed to send representatives. She says that others who are not members of the school will be allowed to come as observers to see what is being done and how the work and instruction is carried on.

"The work on home decoration and the renovation of the old furnishings is a rather romantic study for a woman," said Miss Clark this morning, "and for this reason they take the best of interest in it. I find the same thing true nearly everywhere I go.

"The school of instruction will deal with making the home just as pretty and harmonious as possible with a limited expense or without any added expense."

Miss Clark will leave today for Marshall, Mo., where she will do work in kitchen arrangement with the women of Saline County next week.

BELLOWS BROS. WIN JUNIOR CHAMPIONSHIP

On Supreme Magnet at the Sni-a-Bar Shorthorn Show Yesterday.

Bellows Bros. won junior championship on Supreme Magnet at the fourth annual field show of the American Shorthorn Breeders' Association at the Sni-a-Bar Farms yesterday.

Grand championship on bull was awarded to Augusta Sunrise, exhibited by Frank R. McDermand of the Columbian Stock Farm, Kansas City. In winning the supreme honor Augusta Sunrise also captured the Sni-a-Bar Farms trophy, a silver cup valued at $1,000. The cup thus enters the hands of a Missouri breeder for the first time, Tomson brothers of Dover, Kan., winning it two years ago and Carpenter & Ross, Mansfield, O., last year. It must be won three years in succession to become the permanent possession of an exhibitor.

Supreme Magnet lost the grand championship when he met the big, smooth roan from Kansas City.

Sam Borland of Oak Grove, bought Gypsy's Sultan, bred and consigned by Bellows Bros., Maryville, for $175 at the auction held yesterday at the Sni-a-Bar Farms.

EDUCATION REPORT READY AT CON CON

Early Consideration of the Report by Convention—Some of the Provisions

The report of the Committee on Education has finally been presented to the Constitutional convention and may be up for early consideration, since the reports from the committees on Counties, Cities and Towns and on Taxation and Revenue, which would be next in order, are not in yet.

Much attention has been attracted to the provision in the Education report for a state board of education, which the St. Louis school authorities have chosen to interpret as being antagonistic to that city. Members of the committee went to St. Louis this week to speak before members of the school board and societies interested in educational matters, in an effort to show them that the proposed board is to be no different in its effect on the city of St. Louis and other cities than is the present ex-officio board and the state superintendent. No new powers are to be delegated to the proposed board, which is to be elected under provisions of the general assembly, except the appointment of the commissioner of education. It is to report to the general assembly and suggest improvements needed. The superintendent elected in 1922 will serve out his term in this capacity if the new section is adopted.

In fixing the school age from 6 to 20 years, as in the old constitution, the general assembly is also authorized to provide by law for the instruction of persons of other ages by the state or local school units. This will permit the establishment of kindergartens, vocational, Americanization and night schools as some parts of the state need these school units.

Reading of the Bible in the public schools may be permitted if the following provision in the committee report is adopted: "Neither this state nor any political subdivision thereof shall ever give any financial assistance to any religious sect, nor to any sectrian educational institution; however, this shall not be construed to prohibit the reading of any version of the Holy Scriptures in the public schools of this state."

The minimum school year in all districts of the state is increased by the committee from four to six months, and in case of deficiency not less than the equivalent of one-third of the state revenue for the preceding year or biennial period shall be appropriated to be applied to the support of the public schools. The present constitution provides for 25 per cent, but recent legislatures have appropriated not less than one-third. A minority report would fix the minimum amount to any one district at $250 and require the district to raise by taxation $390, or more if necessary, to maintain a six months' school.

Under a revised section the county school funds may be invested in bonds of the United States, the State of Missouri or municipal bonds of the state in addition to real estate, to which the present constitution limits loans.

The state teachers colleges and other institutions established since the old constitution was adopted are recognized by a provision that "The general assembly may retain, establish and maintain such other free educational institutions as it may deem for the best interests of the state and prescribe the methods of management."

The principle of a teachers' retirement fund is recognized in a provision that "Nothing in this constitution shall prohibit the general assembly from authorizing the establishment of teachers' retirement funds." This section was adopted by a majority of the committee in response to appeals from St. Louis and Kansas City, where the teachers and school boards favored such an enabling act.

Slight changes have been made in other sections, but they do not materially change the meaning or effect. The state board of education provision will be the storm center of the report and it is expected will consume several days in discussion. It is a compromise from the original proposition which provided for a board to be appointed by the governor, on which the members of the committee were evenly divided. An elective board of six members is provided for in the present report.

Mrs. Jesse F. Robertson returned yesterday from a two weeks' visit in St. Louis.

MEETING AT DAVIS SCHOOL IS TO BE WEDNESDAY NIGHT

Dr. Claude P. Fryer and Dr. T. J. Eagle are to Talk—Is Township Gathering.

The meeting for the purpose of organizing White Cloud township for the tuberculosis tests for cattle, which was postponed from last night, is announced for Wednesday of next week, according to Dr. T. J. Eagle, state veterinarian. Dr. Eagle said that a large attendance is expected. A number of people were at the school last night, not having noticed in the papers that the date had been changed.

Dr. Claude P. Fryer, county health officer, will speak at the meeting on the subject of the relation of tuberculosis in cattle to the same disease in human beings and Dr. Eagle will explain the laws regarding the tests and how to make the chutes in preparation.

Dr. Eagle says that he expects to start the tests in the southern part of White Cloud township shortly after the meeting and continue until the township is all worked out.

Dr. Eagle points out that it is best to get all the township tests made at one time for in this way it is possible to load all the reactors and ship them at one time. The tests will be made by districts. The registration papers must be brought to the tests if the cattle are registered. Anyone in a vicinity where a test is made is entitled to bring the cattle, provided they live in the state.

Dr. Eagle will be at Stanberry the first two days of next week for the purpose of making tests and will be at the farms of P. G. Nicholas and W. P. Cummins, near Burlington Junction.

Mrs. Rose Pettit of San Francisco, Calif., who has been the guest of her sister, Mrs. T. J. Eagle, and Dr. Eagle and family, will leave this evening for her home, going by the way of Kansas City.
